Presidential Records Act (PRA) Public Release and Special Access Notification Files 1447 Presidential Records Act (PRA) Public Release and Special Access Notification Files 1447-1	NARA operates Presidential libraries for administrations dating back to President Herbert Hoover (March 1929 - March 1933). As of the start of President Ronald Reagan's term in office (January 20, 1981 - January 20, 1989), the Presidential Records Act (PRA) of 1978 (44 U.S.C. 2201-2209, as amended), has governed records created by the President, Vice President, their immediate staffs, and units or individuals of the Executive Office of the President and Office of the Vice President whose function is to advise and assist the President and the Vice President respectively. NARA's regulations for implementing the PRA are found in 36 CFR Part 1270. As of the approved date of this records schedule, the PRA statute applies to records at the "PRA" libraries for former Presidents and Vice Presidents beginning with the Reagan administration of all future Presidents and Vice Presidents. In accordance with the PRA, NARA's Presidential Materials Division (LM) must formally notify representatives of the incumbent President and relevant former President before Presidential records may be released to the public. The same procedures are followed for proposed disclosures of Vice-Presidential records whereby a representative of the pertinent former Vice President is also formally notified. LM sends formal letters to the representatives, notifying them of Presidential/Vice-Presidential records proposed for opening following a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) access request or completion of a systematic processing project. The PRA allows representatives of the incumbent President, former President, and former Vice President (for Vice-Presidential records only) 60 working days (with one 30-working day extension option) in which to determine if the incumbent President or former President plan(s) to assert a claim of executive privilege. Representatives may respond to LM to officially release the records, or not respond to the notification and simply let the 60-day time period elapse, thereby automatically releasing the records at the end of the time period. Pursuant to 44 U.S.C. 2205, a court of competent jurisdiction, the incumbent President (if needed for conduct of current business), and either House of Congress or a congressional committee or subcommittee can request access to Presidential and Vice-Presidential records in NARA's legal custody that are not yet available to the public. If documents responsive to these "special access" requests are located, LM provides notice to representatives of the former President and Vice President (for Vice-Presidential records only), as well as the incumbent President (if request is from a court or Congress). Representatives of the former President and incumbent President (as applicable) are given 30 calendar days in which to invoke a claim of executive privilege. The time frame may be less than 30 days depending upon the circumstances of the special access request (per 36 CFR 1270.46[d]). If representatives do not respond to LM by the specified date, NARA discloses the records to the requester. PRA Public Release and Special Access Notification Files The Presidential Materials Division (LM) keeps the following records in both public release and special access notification files: correspondence between LM Director/archival policy staff and all other parties (FOIA/special access requesters, PRA libraries, and representatives of incumbent President and former Presidents and Vice Presidents); paper copies of all formal letters sent to representatives and their official responses; and print-outs of case file information from LM Notification Database. For public release notifications only, LM maintains "Library Release Notice" memoranda to notify PRA libraries that they may send copies of responsive records to requesters. This schedule item is not media-neutral because it applies only to paper records.	Temporary DAA-0064-2017-0002 Item 1 Cut off case file at end of the fiscal year (FY) in which notification case is closed. Cases in which files are deemed "prominent" are when: (1) a claim of executive privilege has been made by an incumbent or former President; or (2) requested Presidential/Vice-Presidential records pertain to notable persons or subjects in American government, culture, and/or history. Notable persons may hold/have held high-level positions in the executive, legislative, and/or judicial branches at [the] federal and/or state levels. For example, public release and special access notifications may concern Presidential/Vice-Presidential records regarding high-ranking advisers and nominees to the President's Cabinet and the Supreme Court. Noteworthy subjects in Presidential/Vice-Presidential records may cover significant one-time events (e.g., landmark court cases), commissions of high importance (e.g., 9/11 Commission), or complex issues in domestic and international affairs (e.g., homeland security, tax reform, environment, Middle East policies) spanning one or more administrations. Prominent notification files have historical value insofar as they document topics of interest in Presidential/Vice-Presidential records dating from more than 25 years ago.
